AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cored Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the inflammatory rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years." W. H. MOORE.
Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public." E. F. HARRIS.
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world." JAMES MAYNARD.
520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

Care and Management of Poultry.

Although a great deal has been printed in agricultural papers in reference to the proper management of poultry, and so many have had years of experience in the rearing of fowls, yet it is a fact that no other stock are cared for so badly. Any one who will visit the poultry yards in the country at this time will be forced to admit that the fowls are improperly cared for, as their poll-combs drooping and sickly appearance plainly indicate. A few days ago we visited several farm yards, and in every instance found but very few of the fowls with bright red combs and glossy plumage, and in every instance the owners found fault because their fowls were not yielding eggs. This is, therefore, a rearing of poultry profitably requires great skill and much care, be cause without care they are liable to diseases which greatly destroy and injure the flock; it is therefore necessary to know how to care for fowls. We will not now speak with reference to the breed. Of course, there is difference with regard to the profits to be derived from different breeds, but no matter what the breed, care is requisite to the success. And we may admit that some times where there is an extensive range and but a few fowls they seem to do well, almost without any care, or with but little attention; but even when a hen runs at large and procures her own food she will not produce an egg of as good quality as when fed upon a good selection of food adapted to the production of the egg. For want of care in feeding many fail in making poultry rearing a success. Feeding should be regular, and only in such quantities as will satisfy the necessities of the animals without gorging themselves. Feed should be given in a clean box, or trough, and not be thrown down for the fowls to run over; it should also be distributed so as to be obtained in equal quantities by all. The best mode of feeding is, for morning, to furnish corn and oats in equal quantities; at noon, give wheat shorts mixed with sour milk, with a little ginger, and, occasionally, some sulphur, to maintain the health of the fowls. This is the summer feed. In winter the feeding should be somewhat different. One great necessity is pure clean water, which should be furnished three times a day, and in a clean earthen or iron vessel. Not more than fifty fowls should be allowed in one roost, but it matters not how many run together. The roost should be kept clean and free from vermin, which may be done by means of crude petroleum, kerosene oil, or carbolic acid; it may also be white-washed to purify. Scoury is the effect of a small insect working under the scales of the legs, and can be cured by putting on ointment composed of sulphur and grease, and in twenty-four hours washing with carbolic soap. Some sulphur is absolutely necessary for fowls. If you see them devouring each others' feathers, you may know that is sulphur they require. If your fowls are not now doing well, change their diet. If you have been feeding wheat, change to corn. Corn-meal and shorts, mixed in equal parts with any kind of milk, is good. If insects are not found sufficient, feed re use meat. You will find that if your fowls are properly attended to there will be no lack of eggs and no disease. Do not complain, for if you do not make poultry rearing profitable the fault is your own.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—A party of Texas men amused themselves by tying a darky boy hand and foot, so as to assume as near as possible the shape of a ball. They intended to roll him down a steep embankment. An officer of the law had to threaten instant death to all interferers before he was able to release the scared lad.

The Flathead Reservation.

Few probably know, unless they have personally traveled over the north-western portion of our Territory, that most of the region now covered by the Flathead Indian reservation—a scope of country comprising 2,240 square miles, or 2,433,600 acres—is possessed of the most fertile soil to be found anywhere in Montana. Lying between the forty-eighth and forty-ninth parallels of latitude, and stretching away west from the foot of the main range of the Rockies, the valleys and rolling prairies of the reserve have an average altitude of between 3,000 and 3,100 feet, being 1,000 feet nearer sea level than the agricultural lands in the vicinity of Helena. In consequence of this favorable depression in the face of the country, the climate is much warmer than in other sections of the Territory, and the giant mountain ranges by which the locality is surrounded on all sides still further conduce to temper the severity of cold seasons by breaking the force of the blizzards which sweep over the extensive plains lying to the north and east. The country is splendidly watered throughout its entire length and breadth, and there are but few and very small portions of arable land that, when the reservation is thrown open to settlement, cannot be irrigated at little expense for constructing ditches. Magnificent forests of fir, spruce, cedar, hemlock, tamarac and red and white pine, clothe the surrounding mountains from summit to base, and in some instances spread far out over the valleys, while other than the evergreen trees of varieties not found in any other portion of Montana, struggle with the cottonwood, birch, cherry, a pen and a haw for firm footing along the banks of the numerous streams. The flora of the region is marvelous in the multiplicity of species, and in the luxuriant, even tropical position of the different plants, showing a wonderful productive soil that nurtures vegetation one would sooner expect to find in the glades of Florida than along the banks of mountain brooks in Montana.—Helena (Montana) Herald.

Wanted His Oats.

Last week a commission house which does business on the Board of Trade for country dealers received a visit from a large stranger with a highly inflamed nose and otherwise decidedly sensational aspect.

"You bought some oats for me—a thousand bushels, didn't you?"

"If your name is —" began the head of the firm.

"Potts, yes, sir. Potipher Potts, of Pottsville, Pott County. You wrote me on a circular that ten dollars would buy a thousand bushels of oats, and I sent you the money."

"Yes," replied the commission man.

"Well I want the oats."

"The oats have been sold, and there is a profit of fifty dollars to your credit on our books."

"Sold you sold my oats! What in thunder did you do that for? Who told you to sell my oats?"

"You know you didn't have any oats in reality. The ten dollars you sent us was merely for margin. If a sale declined in price, you would have lost our money."

"See here, if I understand this matter you bought me a thousand bushels of oats for ten dollars. That's what you said you would do, and they're worth now so something like $3.00 or $4.00, and by the great horned jumping spoon I want 'em, and I want 'em bad."

This conversation occurred early in the morning, and it took nearly all day to force the fifty dollars on Mr. Potts and get him out of the office.

Says the Courier-Journal: Smokers can not object to the proposed Mexican reciprocity treaty, for if it goes into effect the Mexican leaf tobacco for cigar-making will come in free, and good cigars will be very much cheaper than they are now. General Grant, who is good authority, says that the Mexican tobacco is finer than that of Cuba, which is getting worse and worse every year, on account of bad cultivation. With free leaf tobacco from Mexico, abominable five cent cigar, almost always a bogus article, will give place to a decent cigar with Mexican filling at a moderate price.

A despatch from Washington to the Louisville Courier-Journal says: Commissioner Raum will shortly issue an order to Internal Revenue collectors changing the rules, so that hereafter export stamps will not be destroyed on whisky designed to be sent to foreign parts, but will be indorsed "for export," with the date, so as to enable the Government officials to determine the age of the article when it is brought back to the United States. An officer of Internal Revenue reports to other points outside of the United States, Western distillers are making contracts to send whisky to Canada. He says such exportation can be made from points as far South as Kentucky for forty cents per barrel, and that many thousand barrels will go over the line in a few weeks.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

We are authorized to announce J. D. KEHOE as a candidate for re-election to the office of Representative for Mason County in the General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

ED. BULLETIN: Permit me briefly, through your columns, to return my sincere thanks to the many kind friends who have signed calls soliciting me to become a candidate for Representative of Mason County, and in response to said calls I announce myself a candidate, subject to the decision of the Democratic party in the primary election to be held March 10th, February 22, 1883. A. P. GOODING.

I hereby announce my candidacy for your Representative in the next Legislature. I am in favor of a return to the good old days of the whipping post, and shall make it my business, should I be elected, to see that the subject is brought prominently and squarely before that body. If there is any one thing, more than another, that should have the attention of our Representatives, it is some efficient punishment for petty stealing, &c. If something is not done at once there will not be enough chickens left in Kentucky to run a camp meeting, nor rails enough left to fence in a ten acre lot. I ask every one in favor of the whipping post to cast their vote for me, promising them that I will do all that can be done to get the bill through. GEORGE TAYLOR.

Lecture.

The Rev. A. N. Gilbert, of the Christian Church, this city, in response to a call from some of our leading citizens, will deliver a lecture at the Court House, Friday evening, March 2nd, on the subject, "What Shall we Laugh at?" The proceeds of the lecture are to be used for the benefit of the sufferers from the flood, in this city and Aberdeen. It is a worthy cause and all should contribute thereto in some way. The lecture begins at 7.30 p. m. Let the citizens turn out and do all they can in the worthy cause.

BY TELEGRAPH.

A WATERY WASTE.

The Mississippi From Thirty to Sixty Miles Wide—Whole Counties Submerged.

SHAWNEETOWN, ILL., February 27.—One hundred and forty houses have been wrecked or floated off, and only thirty of the residences are now tenable even in their upper stories. People, white and black, are indiscriminately huddled in the third stories of the Court House, Pool's pork house, the Catholic convent, the public school house, Wisheart's warehouse and numerous other buildings that have high floors.

The river from Evansville to Shawneetown has an average width of five or more miles. For fifteen miles, beginning at the point called Bald Peak, on the Indiana shore, to Round Pond Hill, on the Illinois side, there is a width of ten miles, and opposite Uniontown, Ky., near the confluence of the Ohio and the Wabash, there is an inland lake forty miles wide. North of Shawneetown land can be reached within two miles, but to the west and northwest there is an unbroken sheet of water for nearly twenty miles. Two-thirds of Gallatin county, in which the town is situated, is under water.

CASEYVILLE, KY., February 27.—This town, of 1,000 inhabitants, is completely inundated, except a few residences on the high bluff to the south. Houses are floating around like corks. All the business establishments are under water, and every stock of goods in town are ruined. Many people are in want of food, and there is urgent need of outside aid.

HICKMAN, KY., February 27.—Hickman is still dry, although all the houses in the bottom are swimming. The river is from thirty to sixty miles wide from this place to Memphis and lacks only two inches of being as high as last year. Should it recede soon, there will be but little loss of stock; but if, as last year, it remains at this stage any great length of time, the loss of life and stock will be incalculable.

FIRE AT PARIS.

Eight Business Houses Destroyed—Loss Over $100,000.

Special to the DAILY BULLETIN.

PARIS, KY., February 28, 1883.—A fire which originated in Henry Daum's barber shop, at 9 o'clock last night, destroyed the property known as the old Paris Hotel, which included eight of the leading business houses of the town. There was a high wind blowing at the time and to add to the horrors of the scene the engines proved to be out of order and refused to work satisfactorily. The fire burned for three hours and a half before it was gotten under control.

The establishments burned are as follows: Henry Daum's barber shop, Clark & Edward's livery stable, N. Kriener's saddle shop, Davis & Lysle's drug store, Western Union Telegraph office, J. Z. Croxton's dry goods store, Jack Neal's saloon, Bayless & Ryan's grocery, and a restaurant. At this time it is impossible to correctly estimate the loss but it is considerably over $100,000.

COL. GUS SIMMONS, of Aberdeen, has in his possession a ring that was found on the steamer Fleetwood several years ago, for which he desires to find an owner. The ring has an inscription on the inside and has enclosed in it a lock of hair. Colonel Simmons has reason to believe that it belonged to some person in Fleming county, but he has, in spite of every effort, failed to ascertain the name of the owner. The Flemingsburg papers will please make a note of it.

Street Railway.

A meeting of citizens interested in the building of a street railway in this city, will be held this evening at 8 p. m., in the Council chamber.

Another lady has a boy in training. This time the lady is not a widow.

Mr. W. T. Calvert gave a party in honor of his niece, Miss Durant, on Monday night last. Miss Durant is handsome and accomplished. A very pleasant company assembled in honor of the occasion. The affair was a most excellent one, wit and good humor prevailed. We could but admire the appropriateness of the answer of General Tom Thumb on a certain occasion when asked by Mr. Barnum, "which one of the ladies among that vast throng, he would like to kiss." After looking carefully around, said he, at the top of his voice, "All of them."

REPORTER.

Columbus and Maysville Railroad.

Columbus (O.) Times.

In our issue of the 16th inst., appeared a statement regarding the projected building of the Columbus & Maysville Railroad, that was not warranted by the facts. The Times said: "It is stated that that road (Columbus and Maysville) is totally defunct, and the President is credited with the statement that the road will never be built." President Bell writes us as follows: "Allow me to say that the statement, which is accredited to me, never was made or anything that could be tortured into such a meaning as the above paragraph is intended to convey."

A Times reporter visited Colonel F. J. Pickard, at his office in the McCune Block, this morning, and from him gathered the following authoritative information in regard to the road:

The Columbus & Maysville Company have $200,000, of available work done, $300,000 local aid secured, the right of way donated on 104 miles of its line, together with other valuable franchises, including a special charter from the State of Kentucky, giving the right to build and operate its road in that State. Its financial arrangements have so far progressed, that the active work of construction will be commenced in sixty days, and a first class standard gauge road, with steel rails, thoroughly equipped, will be built. The located route passes through Grove City, Harrisburg, Mt. Sterling, Jeffersonville, Milledgeville, Sabina, Centerville, New Vienna to Hillsboro, and from there to Sardinia, nineteen miles. The present narrow gauge track owned and operated by the company will be widened to standard gauge. From Sardinia, the line passes through Russellville and Aberdeen to Maysville, Kentucky, connecting at the latter place with the railroad system of the South. Within a short distance of Maysville, and which will be reached by a road in course of construction through Southeastern Kentucky, there are immense quantities of hard timber, superior canal coal, iron ores, etc., which will be of great value to the manufacturing cities of Ohio.

Columbus will derive many advantages from the completion of the Columbus & Maysville road affording as it will a direct outlet to this city of a section of Southern Ohio having a population of 278,000, who have been long tributary to Cincinnati, but will then be as accessible to this city, which will result in attracting here a large share of the local business which now goes to Cincinnati; for Columbus, in addition to being the political center of the State, is an important commercial manufacturing center, and is a city in which many classes of merchandise and manufactured goods the buyer can be as well suited and perhaps more cheaply than at Cincinnati, so that to the manufacturing and commercial interests of Columbus the building this road is an important matter, giving these interests as a direct route, not only through Southern Ohio, but opening the famous and wealthy Blue Grass regions of Kentucky, and in addition beyond that, affording Columbus by a short line, a direct route to the valuable trade of the Central South, a trade so valuable that Cincinnati willingly expended twenty million dollars, in building 335 miles of expensive road to reach, while the completion of the Columbus & Maysville Railroad to Maysville, Ky., will open up to the business interests of Columbus, by a competing route, the same territory with its valuable trade.

The C. & M., have the benefit of the best terminal facilities at Columbus, having arrangements for the use of the track of the Little Miami railroad from the Insane Asylum to the Union Depot, with use of their yards, freight depots, etc., on the most favorable terms.

The Panhandle Company are very friendly to the new road, and there is an agreement between the two companies for a traffic contract covering a complete interchange of business, which will make the Columbus and Maysville road, as far as traffic arrangements are concerned, a part of the most important system in the country.

With such resources and alliances, the Columbus and Maysville becomes the most valuable of the roads now projected out of this city, forming the last link, in a trunk line to the South, which will be 40 to 200 miles shorter to so many important Southern cities, which cannot but be of vast benefit to Columbus and the country through which it is to be built.

The cargo of the lost steamer Glamorgan is valued at about $200,000, on which the insurance in local offices in Boston, including foreign agencies, is about $100,000.

—Several months ago the ragpickers of St. Louis formed an association for the purpose of mutual aid and protection and to prove to the world that, in their own language, a ragpicker can be a gentleman. This union has flourished during the summer, and at a meeting a few days ago they had the satisfaction of hearing what a good record their trade is making. It seems to be the general opinion in St. Louis that they are conducting their business in an enterprising and upright manner, and winning the respect to which their own self-respect entitles them.—Chicago Herald.

—For ten years an Italian has been proprietor of a peanut and fruit stand at the corner of Montgomery and Washington streets, Jersey City, in front of a shoe store. At a sheriff's sale of the store on Wednesday the stock of goods and fixtures were knocked down to the peanut merchant, who promptly handed over the purchase money, amounting to over $1,000. He will continue the boot and shoe business in connection with the peanut and fruit business. His wife remarked that they had money enough left to buy another store.—N. Y. Times.

—Bull fighting at Nimes reached a climax on a recent Sunday. The audience, dissatisfied at the tameness of the animals, threw their chairs into the arena. More than a thousand chairs were broken and all the barriers were knocked down. The police were helpless, and the spectators set fire to all the combustible material within reach so effectively that the fire brigade could scarcely put it out.
